

Bar Night

Saturday evening May 12 is billed as a Women's Bar night in the Bay Area, benefitting the 1979 Gay Parade and Celebration in San Francisco scheduled for June 24.

According to the Women's Outreach Group of the 1979 Gay Freedom Day Committee, participating women's bars will charge one extra dollar at the door that night, which will constitute a one-time surcharge for women entering any other participating bar that evening. Some bars will offer drink coupons and/or door prize tickets to customers that night.

The proceeds from the evening will help launch women's participation in the June 24 parade. By publicizing the Gay Freedom Day event in the women's community, and assisting groups needing some financial aid to join the day's main action.

Flyers will be around the area during the week prior to May 12, Mother's Day eve, and will include a map showing where participating bars are located. At present Peg's Place, Amelia's, Kito's, the Bacchanal, and Maud's are cooperating in the benefit.
