Bunny Dear -

Last night we went to see Lily Tomlin in In Search of Intelligent Life in the Universe. I remember June telling me to see it if ever I got the chance. The "chance" was my birthday (April) present from Wilson. He needed to get them 2 months in advance.

How does Lily T. do it? How pull that much energy and feeling for 2 1/2 hrs. each night? The house was packed & she got a standing ovation at the end. Of course the unseen Jane Wagner is more than 1/2 the act.

What a terrific pair. I didn't expect such ~~a~~ powerful (written) material.

We walked out <sup>in a</sup> subdued mood — meaning wise.

we're both working hard. Wilson's in therapy and there are some changes - how much I don't know. I'm hanging in there and hoping. I'm sculpting and doing other work. For instance I went with a busload to N.Y. to march, from the U.N. to Central Park for nuclear disarmament. There were 100,000 people there at least and not one word in the newspapers or on television. Go figure.

Relatives are coming to visit - this weekend and also another batch next week - but it's so hot - well over 95° - I'm hoping that for all our sakes it cools off before they come.

There are two curious, energetic, affectionate, feisty, adorable kittens with us for a month. We're caring for them - picking up after them would better describe it; lamps overturned, cushions thrown about, smaller objects dragged from room to room. As soon as they leave we'll get one for our very own. Kiko is less delighted.

I love you

Judy
